IT SOUNDED LIKE AN AVERAGE ASSIGNMENT FOR PROFESSIONAL GENEALOGIST KATE EAKMAN. MUCH INFORMATION AS POSSIBLE ABOUT A U.S. SERVICEMAN WHO DIED ON UTAH BEACH ON D-DAY DURING WWII. WHAT FOLLOWED WAS A STUDY IN DEAD ENDS, PERSEVERANCE, AND ONE OF THE MOST MEANINGFUL PROJECTS IT HAS EVER BEEN HER PRIVILEGE TO WORK ON...

KATE EAKMAN holds an M.A. in History from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Prior to her career as a professional genealogist, Kate spent 20 years as a college history professor. Today she is a Senior Researcher for Legacy Tree Genealogists. Kate’s article “Writing the Professional Research Report: Style and Format” was awarded the APGQ Excellence Award for 2016. She currently serves as the co-editor of the GFO Bulletin.

FINDING AND FOLLOWING THE PATHS OF MY CUBAN COUSINS

“I was always told that I had cousins who had immigrated to Cuba, but no one could remember their names or even which branch of the family they were from. And Cuba is a difficult country to research. As more records have become available online, I was able to uncover enough clues to find and contact some of my Cuban cousins. In the summer of 2015, I traveled to Cuba to see what traces I could find of my family there.”

Janice Sellers is a professional genealogist who specializes in forensic, Jewish, black and newspaper research. She has presented numerous talks to diverse audiences at local, regional, state, and national events. She is the editor for ZichronNote, the journal of the San Francisco Bay Area Jewish Genealogical Society (SFBAJGS); the Baobab Tree, the journal of the African American Genealogical Society of Northern California (AAGSNC); and the CSGA Newsletter. She is also the vice president and publicity director for SFBAJGS, a board member of AAGSNC, and was on the staff of the Oakland FamilySearch Library for over 15 years.

Placing Out: The Story Of America’s Orphan Train Children
Saturday, March 10, 2018

Between the 1840s and 1930s, as many as 300,000 children in the United States were taken from institutions, off the streets, or from their families, and sent “west” to be placed out. Today there are millions of their descendants, many unaware of this part of their heritage. We will explore the history, stories, ways to recognize an orphan train child, and learn how to do the research.

Speaker: Judi Scott’s research has focused on Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, and North Carolina. She is a member APG and a graduate of ProGen 11.

The Irish Genealogy Special Interest Group

If you have Irish ancestors, and 55 million Americans say that they do, then this is the perfect group for you!

The Irish Genealogy Special Interest Group (SIG) is restarting this month. Our primary focus will be the genealogical research of the Republic of Ireland, also known as the Irish Free State, Éire, Ireland, and Southern Ireland. Given the tumultuous history of Ireland, we will share the genealogical research of Northern Ireland with the British SIG.

Kate Eakman will be chairing this SIG and Tom O’Brien has agreed to serve as the corresponding secretary. A Senior Researcher with Legacy Tree Genealogists, Kate’s very first task as a professional genealogist involved identifying the family of a woman’s Irish great-grandmother with only a name and a potential date of birth as her clues. Many of you know Tom as the co-leader of the Genealogy Problem Solving SIG and as a member of the German SIG. Tom chaired the former Irish SIG several years ago and served the GFO as a research assistant.

The Irish Genealogy SIG will be a great place for Irish researchers to learn how to work around the 1922 Four Courts fire which nearly destroyed several hundred years of parish records. Irish researchers can share their brick walls and work together with the other members of the SIG to find ways to work around them.

All members of the GFO as well as their guests and any interested members of the public are welcomed to attend the Irish Genealogy SIG. One hour of each two-hour meeting will be spent on presentations about Irish history, genealogy, and resources while the second hour will focus on Irish Brick Wall questions.

During our first meeting, we will determine the group’s needs and desires. We will also appoint volunteers to serve as the recording secretary, the treasurer, and the program chair.

Join us at the GFO on the third Wednesday of the month at 6:00 pm. We will meet on alternating months beginning on February 21.

Irish Revolution Archives to Go Online

Dick Eastman’s Blog  January 10, 2018
Used by permission. http://www.eogn.com

“The letters, official documents, secret military orders, and other papers from figures in Ireland’s political and military revolution are to be made available online.

A project to digitise some of the most important manuscript collections held in the National Library of Ireland (NLI) will mean the documents are easily accessible to researchers and others interested in the history of the period that led to Irish independence.

The NLI’s ‘Towards A Republic’ project will see large tranches of documents made available in a number of phased releases.

You can read more about this future project in an article by Niall Murray in the Irish Examiner web site at: http://bit.ly/2qK87r7.”

Slave Trade Database Project Planned

In a project called “Enslaved: The People of the Historic Slave Trade,” Michigan State University will collect a massive database on the slave trade, and build an online data hub.

The database will link collections from many universities and be searchable for individuals and descendents. The tools will be accessible for historians and public to make analyses, maps, charts, and graphics.

The Mellon Foundation has provided a Foundation Grant of $1.5 million for the project. Read more at http://msutoday.msu.edu/news/2018/msu-uses-15m-mellon-foundation-grant-to-build-massive-slave-trade-database/
Serendipity ~ The Red Book

Nanci Remington

My first genealogy road trip took my sister and I north from St. Louis, through Illinois and the northern rim of Indiana. Our final destination was north central Michigan where my dad’s parents were born. I had planned a route with typical stops at cemeteries, courthouses, and libraries. We even threw in some museums and a stroll through Holland. It was summer, and we really enjoyed walking along the lakeshore in Cadillac.

The next stop was Manton, a small town a few miles north. We had a couple of cemeteries to visit, and I hoped the library would have some family information. This town is the closest one to where my grandparents lived and could be where they met.

Evidently it was closer to Cadillac than I thought because I drove right by the exit! That took us a few miles out of the way, so we backtracked into town. This turned out to be the serendipity moment of the trip.

On the left as we approached town was a very small park, a Veteran’s Memorial, and the Manton Area Historical Museum. Though it is now on the town’s website, at the time it had not shown up in my research of the area. A man sat on a folding chair outside, so we stopped. He said he opened the museum when he felt up to it, and that we could go in and look around.

I should mention that my sister was really not into the research, and she had seen her share of museums on this trip, so she found a bench and sat there visiting while I looked for vintage postcards, photos, or anything that might date back to the turn of the century (the last one, not this one). The museum was organized more like an antique store than a typical museum, and there were piles of books and artifacts in several places. Oh, and the elderly proprietor had never heard of either family name that I was researching.

Just as we decided to move on, I looked over my sister’s shoulder and saw a red ledger book, not labeled and a little scuffed up. For no reason I picked it up and opened it. Inside were three pages of entries. A new school had been built, and they had just hired the first teacher for the 1911-1912 school year. The teacher was Lillian Timmerman, my grandmother!

The book recorded three pay periods:
9/29/11 - $30,
10/2/11 - $5, and
11/10/11 - $14.45.
Lillian would have just turned 19 when she got that first pay check.
Family notes say that after finishing eighth grade she couldn’t go to high school in Manton, so she studied for the teacher’s exam. She may have taught at a different school the previous year. She got married in March of 1912, so she may not have finished out this school year.

The following year the teacher was Conley Brown. From 1913–1914 the teacher was Erma Timmerman, Lillian’s sister. Then the entries ended. The name of the school was not in the book.

Lillian told her children that teaching was very satisfying work. All of her children learned the importance of education. She eventually received her high school diploma and attended college. She was an avid letter writer, poet, and artist.

Unfortunately, there was no way to copy the book at the museum and it never occurred to me to get my camera from the car. So all I have are the notes that I wrote down. Maybe this summer (the museum is closed in the winter) I will call to see if someone can track down that red book.

Do you have a serendipity story? Would you share it with us?

Nominations Requested for GFO Hall of Fame

GFO Hall of Fame Award Policy
Approved April 2007, Revised 2012

The Genealogical Forum of Oregon has established the Hall of Fame Award as a way to honor members who have performed outstanding service to the Forum. The award is limited to one person per year, except in the case where a pair of members has worked together. A nomination may be made by any Forum member and the recipient will be selected from the panel of nominations by a majority vote of the Board of Directors. The recipient must have a well-documented history of service, leadership, and accomplishment in more than one facet of the Forum over a significant period of time.

Procedure:

Any member may nominate another member for the award in writing. A nomination must be submitted to the Forum President and should include:

1) Name and member number;
2) List of services, activities, positions and accomplishments;
3) A narrative describing the nature of their work in terms of its importance to the success of the Forum; and
4) A short biography.

All areas of service will be examined and may include, but not be limited to, serving as an officer or Board member, chairing a major committee, special interest group, research committee, or data development committee, serving as a research assistant, or performing other responsibilities. Other important activities to present might include publishing their own books, teaching, giving presentations, and developing publications or electronic GFO products such as on-line databases or CDs.

The Board will review the information on all nominees and may consider nominations carried forward from a previous year. The Board will select the one which in their judgment is the most deserving. The Board may decline to select a recipient if the available nominations are found to be inadequate or if no nominations are received.

Information submitted for nominees who are not selected for the award will be retained by the Secretary for possible use in future years by the Board.

An honorary life membership is given to the recipient. An official biography will be prepared from the data submitted and will be presented to the recipient for verification prior to the publication of the award.

Schedule:

February: Newsletter announcement about nominations including criteria.
April: Nominations presented to the Board.
May: Board selects a recipient, prepares the plaque and orders a life member badge.
June: Award presentation at the Annual Membership Meeting.
July: Publication of official biography in newsletter.

“Joan has been a reliable and energetic Research Assistant for many years. Visitors enjoy her tours of the library, and she loves to promote GFO activities. With her husband, Roger, she attends many Special Interest Group meetings, workshops, and seminars. Joan began writing book reviews in December 2013; since then, in addition to writing reviews, she has coordinated the book review process for the publisher-donated books we receive. She also has assisted with indexing of records. Recently, she and Roger made the first installment to become GFO Life Members. Many thanks, Joan.”

Friday Morning: It Must Be Time For Indexing

Vince Patton

The GFO has hit a milestone and the entire state will benefit. As of the autumn of 2017, a small cadre of dedicated volunteers has fully indexed Oregon’s marriage and divorce records of 1925-1945.

The State of Oregon sits on this treasure trove of valuable historical information. But it didn’t have the staff to computerize it. So, virtually every Friday morning since 2003, a handful of volunteers from the Genealogical Forum of Oregon (GFO) traveled to the offices of the Oregon Center for Health Statistics in northeast Portland to enter tens of thousands of names into computers.

For the last 770 weeks, (14 years if you don’t want to do the math) the small Friday Indexing Group has done what the state did not have the money or staff to do: they’ve made Oregon’s marriage and divorce records truly accessible in a way never possible before.

It all started on January 17, 2003. Yes, they know the exact date. Connie Lenzen had been at the Oregon Center for Health Statistics office to do some family history research, only to find a huge brick wall. Every single time someone asked for an ancestor’s marriage record it required manually scanning page after page of names. No one had created any kind of index of the records from 1925-1945 for marriages and divorces throughout the state.

Back at the GFO library, Connie told Eileen Chamberlain about the giant void in the state records. The two promptly thought this was a worthy project for the GFO.

Why go to all this effort? As Loretta Welsh, a current member of the Friday Indexing Group says, “We want to find our people! We’re all sitting here looking for our ancestors and know that computers can offer us a huge amount of ease in finding these people.” Their work will help countless others in the future.

For every five years of data records it takes the team about two years to index it. The job’s not over yet.

California Historical Society Collection, 1860-1960

Wikimedia Commons holds a large collection (3,644 items) of historical photographs covering not just California, but several western and southwestern states and Mexico. The dates are 1860–1960. There are images of towns, cities, the old missions, Native Americans, Chinese immigrants, scenic landscapes, culture, arts, buildings, farming, household scenes, mining, and more. If you add the term “ms” to the search, the objects that are documents will be selected. https://commons.wikimedia.org/wiki/Category:California_Historical_Society_Collection,_1860-1960

Included is one small collection of Certificates of Residence for Chinese agricultural laborers, a requirement instituted as a result of the 1892 Geary Act, but not restricted to those workers. The certificates provide a glimpse of a time of exclusion of immigrants from China; they were required to be carried to prove the right to remain in the country. They contain a description of the person (these are all men) as well as a photo.

A finding aid to the collection is at the California Online Archive: http://www.oac.cdlib.org/findaid/ark:/13030/kt8580384p/

One person’s brick-wall buster might provide YOU with the very clue you need to break through yours. This month the group will tackle the case of the elusive Cullen ancestors of GFO member Vince Patton, in particular, his great-great-grandfather Terence Cullen’s origin and family in Ireland before immigrating around 1850.

Irish research can be extremely challenging, especially for nineteenth-century immigrants to the U.S. Join GFO’s GPS group for inspiration and advice. In addition, the group will briefly tackle any attendee’s genealogical research question.

Want to submit your own problem to our experts? To start, send a brief description of the problem to gps@gfo.org. The team will follow-up with requests for additional information and documentation. You must be able to attend one of the future GPS sessions when your problem will be the topic of the meeting. The group meets on the third Saturday of most months—unless no one has submitted a problem for them to solve! How about sending in yours?
