Dear Members,

By the time you receive this issue, the wonderful Fall Seminar with Paula Stewart-Warren will be over. We hope those attendees learned a lot, and we know the many volunteers enjoyed the camaraderie as well, putting on the event. We want to publicly praise all those volunteers who made the seminar run so smoothly. We could not do with out their dedicated efforts. Thank you, Jeanette Hopkins and Gerry Lenzen, seminar co-chairs, who keep everything moving along.

In the new year, we will be looking at properties to lease when TriMet buys the current building, which is to be demolished for the new Milwaukie MAX line. A new Ricoh printing machine for our print shop was delivered on the 1st of October to replace the previous one whose 5 year lease was ending. Also, we confirmed that when we make the move to a new building, the leasing company will transport it. Yay! That’s just one of the many details to consider with the upcoming move.

On November 13th, at our Monthly Program, we will host a panel of local veterans from the famous 10th Mountain Division of WWII. One of the group is Dick Burling, husband of our Education Committee co-chair, Patricia Burling. Movies have been made about this group of skiers. Although they were experienced leisure time skiers, military training on Mount Rainier near Fort Lewis, WA, and then Camp Hale, Colorado, prepared the team for mountainous duty in the waning years of WWII in Italy.

From one of the websites: “Veterans of the 10th Mountain Division were in a large part responsible for the development of skiing into a big name sport, national pastime, and vacation industry in the years after World War II. Former soldiers from the 10th laid out ski hills, built ski lodges, designed ski lifts and improved ski equipment. They started ski magazines and opened ski schools. Winter resort towns of Vail, Aspen, Sugar Bush, Crystal Mountain, and Whiteface Mountain are but a few of the ski areas built by 10th Mountain Division Veterans.” (For more info on the 10th Mountain Division, check out the websites offered with a “Google.com” search.)

Have you tried the new Oregonian Archives database on the Multnomah County Library website’s database collection.? (www.multcolib.org.....you need a Multnomah County Library Card to access it from home). See separate article in this issue about this new resource. It is an “every name index”, including marriage write-ups and photos, as well as showing the images for the “funeral notices, and death notices” that were ignored on the previous index done on cards and then put on microfiche. On the previous index, the obituaries and headline stories were indexed--see our copy of microfiche in the cabinets near the lunchroom. I thought the photo of me at 12 years old, playing the accordion with the Young Oregonian beginners’ class, could have been sharper…but that’s just me, lucky to have a photo in the daily newspaper of the time period.

Wishing you good success with your research time,
Lyleth Winther

BRITISH GROUP NEWS

The British Group kicked off their sixth year with a presentation on traditions that came to America from the British Isles. Like Halloween, the carving and naming of the Jack-o-lantern., the first traditional ones were carved from turnips or rutabagas, with a light placed in them to keep away the bad spirits. Christmas, New Years, and the Welsh Loving Spoon (an engagement gift) were discussed also. Also, the peeling of an apple by a young maiden into one long peel, so it could be tossed over the shoulder, falling into the shape of a future husband’s first name. That was believed to have come with the Welsh to America.

The next meeting of the group will be January 22nd at 1pm in the Higgins Room, with the speaker yet to be confirmed. The 2nd hour of the meeting is reserved for Brick Wall problems. Note: There is no meeting in November as there is a conflict for meeting time around Thanksgiving week. Future meetings: 4th Saturdays in March and May. (Questions: Lyleth Winther, 503-658-8018 or lylaw1@frontier.com)
Moving Ahead
By
Don Holznagel

As noted in the October Insider, we are beginning to look for suitable new properties, and I’m encouraged by the fact that several members have already sent suggestions. The Relocation Committee met with TriMet representatives September 28th. Although news reports have indicated that TriMet is looking at possible delays in the development of the Milwaukie MAX line, their timeline for acquisition of our current location appears not to be affected. They plan to acquire the property in March, 2011 or earlier depending on the speed of their appraisal process, which means that we will be able then to begin to be reimbursed by TriMet for various kinds of search and preparation activity costs. We are also already engaged with their relocation contractor who is providing free assistance with planning, finding qualified and reputable library moving companies, providing leads on possible new locations, and other tasks. Our journey has begun, and I look forward to your suggestions.

The Heritage Scrapbooking Group

Heritage Scrapbooking is continuing into our second year meeting on the first Sunday of each month (excluding summer months). Our hours have been extended from 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. giving folks more time to work on their projects.

On November 7th, we will be welcoming back Creative Memories Consultant Pam Toth who will have Creative Memories products available for purchase. Pam is a very experienced and talented scrapbooker who is willing to get people started in either paper or digital scrapbooking.

So, if you're interested in learning more about how to protect your precious heritage photos and tell your family’s story, please join us. Contact Bonnie LaDoe at bladoe@aol.com if you plan to attend.

News From the Data Extraction Committee

Oregon Death Project: The data extraction committee recently completed a second project for the state of Oregon Vital Records office. It is an index of Oregon deaths from 1903-1905, with 14 of those deaths occurring prior to 1903. The index will be on our website (www.gfo.org) under the "index" tab. If you find a relative, you can request a copy of the certificate, and any attachments, from the Forum for $5 per person.

Oregon Marriage Project: Our first project for the state of Oregon was a marriage index covering 1925-1945. During WWII, many out of state residents were married in Oregon. If you can't find the couple where you think they should have been, then check our index. An index of the bride and groom, with the year of marriage, will be on our website. The details of the marriage may be requested for $5 per couple, or you may purchase any one of the four CDs for $10 each. (Vol 1: 1925-1929; Vol 2: 1930-1934; Vol 3: 1935-1939; Vol 4: 1940-1945)

Oregon Birth Project: The data extraction committee is beginning its third project for the state of Oregon, a birth index for all Oregon counties from 1903-1905/6. We meet at the state office in Portland most Friday mornings. If you are interested in volunteering, please contact Loretta Welsh at oregon1853@yahoo.com or call 503-663-6987.

News From the Print Shop

A new printer was installed on October 1st. We have had our "old" printer nearly five years! Our new printer/copier will print in black & white (no color), collate, staple, and scan in both black & white and color in either PDF files or TIFF files. Our offer is still available to our members to request print jobs at 10% over our costs. We will also scan your work or photos and put them on a CD for you. This does not include the books in our library, as that would be a copyright infringement. Please contact Loretta Welsh at oregon1853@yahoo.com for details.

OCTOBER’S MONTHLY PROGRAM
With Larry Sullivan, GFO’s Webmaster

On Saturday, October 9th, Larry Sullivan helped members become more familiar with the GFO website. For those of us more recent Oregonians, both members and guests, it was 90 minutes of enlightenment about the 1,350 pages easily accessed from the Home Page: www.gfo.org.

The home page contains links to our library catalog, which is searchable by state, region, country and by name. The Genealogy Indexes contain: Provisional Land Claims, Donation Land Claims, Multnomah County Marriages (updated June 2010), World War I draft registrations, Multnomah County Probates, and much more.

Of special interest for this researcher is the category “Useful Links” accessed from the Home Page. Here is found the category “General Genealogy and Search Sites”. The list includes links to Death Indexes by state. To quote from the introduction to the site.

“This website is a directory of links to websites with online death indexes, listed by state and county. Included are death records, death certificate indexes, death notices & registers, obituaries, probate indexes, and cemetery & burial records. You can also find information here about searching the Social Security Death Index online”.

The “Vital Records” link leads to the website maintained by the Center for Disease Control (CDC). This gives information by state.

“The Useful Links” are provided for those users who want direct access to individual state and territory information. To use this valuable tool, you must first determine the state or area where the birth, death, marriage, or divorce occurred, then click on that state or area”.

The link to “State Archives” is maintained by the Georgia Secretary of State and contains information for each state’s department charged with collecting and preserving its archives. The information includes correct department title, address and phone number for each state and territory.

Useful links also includes organizations such as US Genweb, and Rootsweb with its information on what county the researcher’s city is located. There are links to Find A Grave, a Birthdate Calculator; a link to Genuki for genealogical research in England, Scotland, Wales, Ireland and the Channel Islands.

There are links to LDS sites and Military sites, to Revolutionary War sites, including the Patriot Lookup Services of the DAR. There are links to Civil War and the Spanish American War.

Additional links take one to Land Records Maps and Gazetteers. Under Immigration there are links to Castle Gardens (1820-1913) and to Ellis Island. A section is entitled Quaker Research with links to the Quaker Information Center and the Quaker Corner for those with Quaker ancestors. Finally, there is a category named “National Archives” with links to many countries’ repositories of vital records.

Larry gave the members a hint when researching by proper names, whether it be Google or using the links listed on GFO’s website: place the first and middle names in quotes; “John Merlin” Smith, for example, leaving the surname outside the quotes. If the spouse’s name is known, one can try using the first and last name of the man with first and maiden name of spouse. This technique will be more selective, but inclusive enough for a good list of possibilities. Larry also suggested, when looking in the library catalogs for published genealogies, to list the subject’s name rather than the title of the book, since titles often contain words not relevant to the actual person one is researching.

This writer was much impressed by the amount of useful material for every genealogy researcher, not only those with Oregon roots. I was not the only one. I heard several comments from those who had not looked past the Home Page’s calendar of coming events or to register for upcoming seminars. The members and guests in attendance came away with practical knowledge and also increased appreciation for our webmaster and his predecessors for building and maintaining this treasury of research tools.

Genealogical Forum of Oregon
2011 Writing Contest
“Movin’ On”

Why enter?

You may never get around to writing down your family stories!
The GFO Writing Contest encourages you to:

- Write an engaging story that future generations will enjoy, and
- Base your story on good, sound research.

Requirements

- Piece must be written to the theme: “Movin’ On” — tell the story of your ancestor, migrating from one place to another.
- Your story must be factual, with suppositions clearly indicated. Documentation in the form of endnotes or footnotes is required.
- Length — 750 to 5000 words
- Story must be submitted in electronic form — Word or RTF file, submitted as an email attachment or burned to a CD or floppy disk.
- Submitted from November 1, 2010 to February 1, 2011. Please do not submit before November 1st.
- Plan ahead and make a concerted effort to attend the award presentation at the GFO Monthly meeting on Saturday, April 9, 2011.

Judging Criteria

- A factual story built around the theme
- A story that engages the reader
- Good use of language, including smoothness of the writing
- Convincing research – genealogical and background
- Well documented — all facts are supported by evidence

Need Help?

- Attend GFO’s Writers’ Forum or other writing group, for feedback on your writing; or form your own group.
- Read Sharon Carmack’s You Can Write Your Family History (Cincinnati, Ohio: Betterway Books, 2003).
- For citing sources: Elizabeth Shown Mills, Evidence: Analysis for the Family Historian (Baltimore, Maryland: Genealogical Publishing Company, 1997) and Elizabeth Shown

LIBRARY COLLECTION NEWS

Our Library tour continues into the New World: North America. First we have material that refers to both Canada and the U. S. (Dewey number 970). Here you will find several biographical dictionaries and histories, as well as periodicals.

Next is the Native Americans of North America section (971.1). Most of these volumes are general histories of Native American/European interaction. Material on specific tribes follows (971.3). A quick glance gives us volumes on the Cherokee, Apache, Navaho, Chickasaw, and Kalapuya, among others. [Remember: If you are looking for Native Americans in a specific place, look there first: Chinook in Oregon will be shelved in Oregon. The 971.3 section is for more general, non-location specific material.]

Next time: on to Canada!

OREGONIAN ARCHIVES DATABASE
By Various Contributors

- Nathan Haines, Sr-

I found out something the other day that I think a whole lot of people are going to want to know about, if you don’t already know. I am very surprised: I had never heard a thing about this yet since I do family research with every waking moment of my time, aside from the few other things that I have to do to stay alive like eating and breathing, know what I mean?!

The other day, Lyleth showed me this database, "The Oregonian Historical Archives", and said it was available to me, from home, through the Multnomah County Library website. She thought I could get lots of use out of it since I volunteer to answer some requests at a message board for Multnomah County.

Cathy Lauer told me that the Multnomah County Library has the Oregonian available though their web site if you have a Multnomah County library card. The Oregonian from 1861 thru 1972 has all been digitalized and you can view all these papers on what is called America's Historical Newspapers which you can access through the library’s web site.

You have to have a Multnomah County Library Card to use this, or you can go to one of the branch libraries. The homepage for Multnomah County Library is at: http://www.multcolib.org/

As Nathan said, you choose "Databases", which is on the library homepage under "Most Popular". Then you do the following on the next pages that come up:
1) click on the letter "O" (for Oregonian).
2) click on "The Oregonian Historical Archives".
3) type in your library card number and your PIN number, and click on "Submit".

Now you are into the screen where you can "Search".

One thing Lyleth said was to use quotes around the name you want to find. There is a little instruction to the right of the word "Search" that says , "To find an exact phrase, use quotes.". To the immediate right of the "Search" box is another box where you can choose: one of the following:
1) Full Text.
2) Headline.
3) Standard Title.
4) Title as Published.

The next box gives you a choice of how you want the "Return" to show.
1) Chronological order.
2) Reverse chronological.
3) Best matches first.

I was looking for a place called "Guilds Lake", in Portland. I got over 300 pages of references. Today this lake isn't mentioned on any of the maps I've seen. Although I did find it on an old AAA map of Portland, which I think I got in 1985. It showed the words Guild's Lake but the map didn't show the lake. I found out, through the articles on the MLC database, that the lake was filled in and is now an industrial area across the Willamette River from the Swan Island Industrial area (which is west of the Broadway Bridge).

Several of the articles talked about this lake as the site of the 1905 Lewis & Clark Exposition in Portland, from the planning through the actual Exposition. I found another article, just after Christmas, in December 1909, that said the lake froze solid enough to attract skaters and spectators in the cold evenings, and bonfires were built all around the lake. Guilds Lake wasn't always mentioned in the headlines in these articles, so you can find information about people, places within the text of the articles in this database. One of the really great things is you can find the person mentioned in the death and funeral notices. Deaths and funeral notices have not been included in the previous indexes or on the microfiche card files for this publication.

The page number typed above the digitized newspaper viewing area, the citation, isn't always the page number of the actual article in the newspaper. It might be the page number in the "Table of Contents", which shows up on the left of the screen, and is the number of the digitized image. If the article is in section 1 of the newspaper, the page in the Table of Contents is probably going to be the same as the page at the top of the newspaper. But, if the actual newspaper page is 5 in section 2 or 3, it won't be the same page number as in the Table of Contents. Go to the top of the digitized image to see what the actual newspaper page is. If the citation, above the digitized image says page 27, and the top of the actual newspaper page says page 3, use the Table of Contents, count back 3 pages, and click on page number 25. (Page 25 should be the first page of that section.) Then go to the top of the newspaper to see which section you are in. My dad was a baseball player and his name appeared many times in the Sports section. That section was usually section 3. The Oregonian of today has a letter and a number at the top of each page. B5 would be section "B" and page "5", so you don't have to count back to see the section and page, you just go to the top of the actual newspaper page.

Jan Fenter-

My printer wouldn't print the text that was highlighted, which was the name of the person, place or thing I was searching for. There was just a blank rectangle where the text was highlighted, and I clicked on my printer to print the page. I tried changing my printers "preferences", from color to black and white. Although this has worked in the past when I wanted to print a page that had colored images, it didn't work this time. I then downloaded a PDF file and emailed it to myself as an attachment. Upon looking closer at the options on the Archive's page, I noticed a little box that had a check mark opposite the word "Highlights". I unchecked the box and that eliminated the highlight problem. Using the printer at GFO, we had to position the article in the top left corner of the viewing area to get it to print on one page. We also did a print preview before we printed to see how the copy would look. Sometimes a preview will show more than one page, giving you one page just for the citation, or a blank page, and another for what you want to print. You can choose to print just one page, by typing in the page number you want to print before clicking on the print box.

Along the sides and top of the viewing area are arrows that will move the image up, down, left and right. There are also options above the viewing area, which allow you to:
"Zoom" (minus or plus)
Drag on mouse click
Select an article from this page
Reset image view
Download PDF
Printer friendly display
Print
Maximize image view

There are some other options: Article Bookmark, Export Citation and Email.

On the page that gives you the image of the article you want, at the top left it lists the name of the newspaper and date, and then there are two things you can choose: Download Issue; Browse Issues. I chose Browse Issues, just to see what would come up. The next page showed all the years available for the Oregonian, and the colored rectangles were the ones available to browse, from 1861 through 1971. Below this it showed the months and days available for each year you clicked on. If you click on the month, day, and year you were born, and go to the front page of the newspaper, you will find out what news-worthy things happened in the world on your birthdate, or the birthdates of your parents, grandparents, brothers and sisters... news-worthy at least according to the Oregonian.

The only thing that would make this MCL Historical Archives database better is to be able to have the Oregon Journal and some of the other early newspapers of our area available. Many of the obituaries in the Oregon Journal got much more space and gave more information about people who lived in our area. It was more of a hometown newspaper, and sometimes an obituary would be published in the Journal when it was to be found in the Oregonian. This is also true about other types of articles on people and things of our area.

This database has been really helpful to me and is a great addition to my Favorites list.

Area Libraries’ Reciprocal Agreements

Denise Goodie of Skamania County, Washington add: “You may get a free library card if you are a resident of Multnomah or Washington counties in Oregon; or Clark, Skamania and Klickitat counties in Washington; or if you live in Camas, Woodland or Yale in Washington. If you live in Clackamas County, and outside the city limits of Damascus or Johnson City, you may also get a free library card.”

“If you live outside of our area, you may register for a one-year Multnomah County Library card for a fee of $135.00 per household”

Editor’s Note: Thanks to Nathan Haines, Sr., Cathy Lauer, Jan Fenter, Lyleth Winther, Denise Goudie and Sydney Stephens for contributing information for this article. JB
